If you are calling from a land-line on campus, you will need to dial 9 before the number.

Severe Weather

If weather conditions indicate possible danger from severe weather, the RAVE Emergency Notification System will be utilized and the warning sirens in Oskaloosa will sound. If this occurs during the night, residence hall and campus safety staff will take steps to notify on-campus students and personnel.

Avoid wide span structures such as gyms or metal buildings. Remain in your shelter area until instructed otherwise by your hall staff, campus safety, or local authorities. If possible, keep a flashlight and battery-operated radio to take to the shelter area.

What do the RAVE system messages mean?

WATCH
A severe thunderstorm or tornado watch indicates that such storms are possible in the Oskaloosa area.

When you become aware that a watch has been issued, tune in to a local radio station (KBOE 104.9 FM) or TV station in order to keep up to date regarding changing weather conditions.

WARNING
A severe thunderstorm or tornado warning is when weather conditions warrant actions.

TAKE SHELTER IN DESIGNATED AREAS.
The RAVE Emergency Notification System is in place for students, faculty, staff, and the entire William Penn community. You will receive notifications for:

- Weather
- Campus emergencies
- Important announcements

Messages can be received by email, text message, cell phone, and land-line. Each semester, all current students are added to the notification list in the RAVE System. If a student does not wish to receive these notifications, they can opt out of the text message or phone call option. They will still receive notifications through their William Penn email address as mandated by the Department of Education.

To be added to the William Penn University RAVE Emergency System or for more information, please email the Director of Campus Safety at reynoldst@wmpenn.edu. Please include:

- Your first and last name
- Email address
- WPU ID #
- Phone numbers
- Oskaloosa or Johnston campus

A RAVE System test will be conducted at the beginning of the first and second semester and the notifications you will get will appear similar to the below.

After hours, please contact Campus Safety. Let them know of any people trapped in elevators. Residence hall staff should have flashlights available in the event of a power failure. Check unit rooms, hallways, or bathrooms to see if anyone is in need of assistance.

Odors

Contact Campus Safety immediately if you smell a strange odor in the residence halls or on campus and cannot determine its origin or cause.

Additional Items

Carbon monoxide gas can kill or injure people. Therefore, never operate a gas, kerosene, or diesel powered device or burn charcoal inside the buildings.

Career Services

The William Penn Career Services office supports students as they transition to the workplace or into advanced degree programs. They support alumni as they pursue new careers, advance in current positions, or seek professional development. This office provides career exploration opportunities such as job shadowing, internship programs, part-time jobs, and help with job searches as students near graduation.

The office staff assists students in developing tools for successful employment like resumes, cover letters, portfolios, and interviewing skills. Furthermore, students are taught job search strategies, provided career interest guidance, and connected to potential mentors in their career path. Watch for the launch of Handshake, a career platform developed by students for students, coming in the 2018-19 school year.

Additionally, Career Services, in cooperation with the Iowa College Recruiting Network (ICoRN), organizes three Career Interview Days for current students and William Penn periodically hosts Career and Internship Fairs for students, alumni, and the community.
