WILLIAM PENN UNIVERSITY, PENN HALL

WELCOME BACK, STATESMEN!

Welcome home, Statesmen! Let's get started on another great year here at William Penn University. Congratulations on moving into your next year.

Don't forget, we all have a responsibility of representing WPU - and that includes lending a hand to the newcomers! Can't you remember your first week here? It can be pretty stressful to jump into a community that you don't know, so it's our job to make the Freshmen and transfers feel at home in these halls. And to those who graduated and won't be returning, you will always have a home here at Penn!

It's not only great to see the returning students walk around the campus, but the beloved WPU staff as well! Without you, no matter the role you play, we wouldn't be able to thrive and grow at Penn.

Welcome home, everyone, and welcome to the first issue of the revived Penn & Ink. We are thrilled to start this journey with all of you, and we want you to know that we not only value your thoughts and concerns but we run off of them.

You, the students of William Penn University, are the fuel for this publication! Your submissions and suggestions make the content that we publish!

Without further adieu, let us dive into this new semester!

“Right is right, even if everyone is against it; and wrong is wrong, even if everyone is for it.”

William Penn

WELCOME, FRESHMEN & TRANSFERS!

William Penn is so excited to welcome this new wave of students to campus! Embarking on this new chapter in life can be confusing and stressful, but the WPU staff are here to help with anything you need. If you want to get in contact with someone, look at the DIRECTORY! You can also talk to your professors, advisors, or even returning students if you have any questions as you move through your first week here at Penn.

William Penn is a smaller university than most, which allows us to offer students much more in terms of one-on-one guidance with professors and opportunities to explore the areas of career you are interested in! Our student-professor ratio ensures that you will be able to find time to speak to and get to know the people you'll be spending these next years around.

First things first, make sure you have your student ID! If you don't, contact RESIDENCE LIFE to get one made as soon as possible. IDs are required to get into the dorms and make life in the cafeteria much easier. Not to mention, various businesses around Oskaloosa offer discounts to William Penn students who have their ID on hand!

And, let's be honest, we're all broke college kids here.

Secondly, if you have a car, you will want to get a parking pass so that you aren't fined when you park on campus. CAMPUS SAFETY is the office that supplies these stickers for your vehicle, but you need to register it on wmpenn.edu/vehicle-registration!

I know we all think it's ridiculous that we can get ticketed for parking at the school we're paying to attend. But getting your vehicle registered will save you the hassle of dealing with it, and it helps campus security determine whether or not people who don't actually attend WPU are taking spaces from those of us who do.

Thirdly, this first week is meant for you to get settled into your schedule. If you need to drop or add a class, or you discover a scheduling conflict, this week is when you want to take care of it - the sooner the better! All you need to do is sit down and talk with your advisor to sort things out, so make sure you get in touch with them.

There are maps around campus to help you find your way, but you can also find one online to have with you while you get your footing. You should have a printed version of your schedule if you attended the Freshman Orientation Sunday night but, if not, feel free to use the WPU printers! Having these two things will make things a lot easier during this first week, I promise!

For as much as Penn has to offer, we know that you have just as much to give back. You weren't only selected to attend this private university because of your grades or GPA - William Penn values qualities in its students just as much as academic success, and almost as much as the money they're swiping from your wallets!

I'm joking, I'm joking... The professors and staff here really do care about us students, in all honesty. Penn wouldn't be Penn without them.

And, to be fair, it wouldn't be Penn without us students, either. Getting involved in organizations and sharing your thoughts and opinions are part of what makes the WPU experience so enjoyable.

Feel free to do that here, just send in a submission and we can cover the topic for you. You can also apply to become a part of the Penn & Ink, and work on stories yourself!

Just like this publication, there are countless clubs and organizations to get involved with! We'll be covering many of them in these issues, so make sure you come back to learn more about these great opportunities.

We're so happy you decided to join us! Now, let's make your dreams come true~

When we say William Penn is alive with opportunity, we mean it. Those opportunities are every bit as diverse and dynamic outside of the classroom as they are inside. When it comes to extra-curricular

PENN TIPS & ADVICE

TIPS FOR NEWCOMERS

#1 - Always ask questions, be kind, take comfort in everyone being anxious, they aren't alone.

The best advice you will ever receive is to always ask questions. It doesn't matter who you are or where you're at, asking questions is the best way to learn and grow! This is something that applies to everyone - not just newcomers at William Penn.

Ask your fellow Statesmen, your professors, employers, and so on when you want clarification on something or need help figuring something out. Chances are, you aren't the only one wondering about it!

#2 - Get to know your professors and WPU staff! Building relationships with people as you move through your time here at Penn will set you up for greatness. When it comes to your professors, sitting down to talk with them about classwork and personal topics will create an understanding.

For example, if you have responsibilities at home or at work that may interfere with class times, explaining it and working through the possible resolutions with your professors might end up saving your grades! The same can be said for students balancing sports and academics - allow your professors to get to know you better and vice versa!

#3 - The best experience happens when you get involved with events and organizations on campus. There are plenty to pick from, with various levels of involvement to fit your needs as a busy student.

You'll get to see and hear from all of these groups during Welcome Week! Booths will be lined up on the sidewalks and inside the PAC, ready to tell you all about their organization. You're sure to find something that suits you.

I hope to see you there!

»Shoutout to Boston Romero (Sr.) & Breck Putzier (Jr.), the first NAIA selections for WPU LaX«

#4 - BYOF. What the heck is BYOF? Bring your own fan! Trust me, this is a must. In the first couple of months, Iowa heat can be pretty intense. Some of the older buildings don't have updated cooling systems, so bringing a small portable fan to classes in Penn hall will save you the sweat stains.

You can find some that plug into outlets, some that run on batteries, and even some that will plug into your computer with a USB port!

#5 - Your WPU email is the heartbeat of our community. You'll get reminders for events, updates from your professors, and notifications about your grades. Most importantly, you'll have access to each new issue of Penn & Ink! wink wink, nudge nudge

—FOUNTAINHEAD FEATURES—

Editor-in-Chief, Samantha Schwent

As the Editor & Chief of Penn & Ink, I am thrilled to introduce our first-ever issue. Penn & Ink is not your typical university newspaper because we are entirely student-run and student-focused. Our goal is to create a platform that is respectful, informative, and inclusive, while highlighting your stories and accomplishments in a space for meaningful discussion.

We want to make sure that our newspaper is not just accessible to students, but also reflective of their interests and concerns. That's why we are committed to covering a wide range of topics, from campus news and events to arts and culture, sports, and social issues. If there is something you want us to cover, let us know!

Penn & Ink will not be publishing gossip or negative content. With that being said, we won't shy away from difficult topics or conversations. If you want to talk about something, we're giving you the space to do so!

We also understand that a publication is only as good as the participation it receives. That's why we are calling on all students to share their thoughts, ideas, and suggestions. Whether it's a review of a sport or theater performance, an opinion on a campus issue, or an event you want us to cover, we want to hear from you.

As a university newspaper, Penn & Ink has the unique opportunity to connect students with each other and with the wider university community. Our newspaper will serve as a platform for students to voice their opinions, share their experiences, and engage in dialogue about issues that matter to them. We aim not only to be informative but also engaging and interactive to bring the student body together and create a community that is informed, connected, and empowered.

One of our core values is to foster a culture of inclusivity and diversity. We believe that every student at our university has a unique story to tell and a perspective to share. Through our newspaper, we hope to celebrate these differences and bring people together.

As a student-run publication, we are always looking for new voices to join our team. Whether you are interested in writing, photography, design, or social media, there is a place for you at Penn & Ink. Joining our team is a great way to gain experience, build your portfolio, and make new connections on campus.

Finally, we believe that a great newspaper is one that encourages its readers to think critically and engage with the world around them. We hope that Penn & Ink will be a source of inspiration, information, and motivation for our readers, and that it will help to shape the conversation on campus and beyond.

I can't wait to get started on this journey with all of you, and I hope we can work together to make this the outlet that I know it can be.

Until the next issue,

Samantha Schwent

⇒Attention Students!⇐

We want to hear from you. Submit your ideas for topics, interview subjects, or your own work.

Recommend athletes, artists, or other students who deserve to be recognized. We are here to celebrate the diverse voices and talents of our student body, and we can't do it without your input.

Join us in creating a newspaper that reflects your interests, concerns, and passions. Whether you're a writer, photographer, designer, or just have something to say, there's a place for you at Penn & Ink.

STUDENT SUBMISSIONS Q&A

What is the Penn & Ink?

Penn & Ink is a student-run university newspaper for William Penn University. It's not to be confused with the Penn & Ink Literary Magazine, which features mostly poetry and other writing and artforms. We really wanted it to be an all-inclusive place, where students of all interests are included. (In other words, the editor-in-chief probably went off the rails).

How frequently will the paper be published?

You can expect a new issue every two weeks, with time spared for the holidays. This allows us plenty of time for revision and prevents our writers from feeling overwhelmed with articles on top of their regular responsibilities.

It also creates plenty of opportunity for submissions to be sent in, discussed, and put down on paper. Well, electronic paper.

What kind of content will we release?

Well, that highly depends on you-our readers. The goal of the Penn & Ink is to produce content that covers the topics WPU students are interested in discussing, whatever that may be. While we won't shy away from controversial discussions, we won't condone any slander or targeted content that harms students or staff.

Penn & Ink Newspaper Submissions Form Pt. 1

If there is something you think should be brought to the table, grab a chair and have a seat. We want to explore your interests, not just the interests of an institution. Send us suggestions, thoughts, and leads through the student submissions form and we'll do our best to get it out to the world.

How can students get involved?

There are many different ways to get involved with the newspaper! You can send in topic suggestions, anonymously or otherwise, or you can join the team and write articles yourself—even if it's just a one time thing! For the aspiring photographers and artists, send in photos of your work to have them featured here for everyone to see! Submissions and applications can be found here!

There are several small spaces throughout the newspaper that are available for advertisements or short messages. If you have a club meeting or event on the rise and want to get the word out, we're happy to help out.

You can also interact with us on our instagram page, @wmpennandink, through email, wmpennandink@gmail.com, or come chat with us in person.

Penn & Ink Newspaper Submissions Form Pt. 2

Are there opportunities for students to gain experience in journalism or writing?

Absolutely! Every writer is credited to their articles, which can be used as future samples for interviews and resumes. WPU will archive every issue that we released, so anyone who has published their work here, whether that be written pieces or artwork, will be able to pull it up years from now.

How can people stay updated about new releases?

Each new issue will be sent directly to your WPU email! You can also follow our instagram account, @wmpennandink, or keep an eye on the campus bulletin boards for Penn & Ink fliers.

How can students provide feedback or suggest ideas to improve the newspaper's content and overall experience?

Feedback can be sent in through the submissions forms, social media, email, or by speaking to the editor-in-chief in person. All of us are eager to hear your thoughts and concerns going forward, so please don't hesitate to share with us!

Let us know if you have any other questions!

THE ART STUDENT'S TOOLKIT: CREATIVE OPPORTUNITIES

WILLIAM PENN UNIVERSITY, MCGREW ARTS BUILDING

Hey there, future Picassos and digital da Vincis! If you're passionate about unleashing your creativity and fearlessly embracing the artistic journey, this one's for you. Art majors often get the side-eye when it comes to job prospects, but let me tell you, that's nothing but a big ol' myth! The truth is, your art degree is a superpower that can lead you down a rabbit hole of amazing and realistic career opportunities. So, let's dive into this colorful world of possibilities!

Fine Arts and Visual Arts Careers

Painters, sculptors, photographers, and illustrators, this is your playground! According to BLS, the demand for fine artists, including painters and sculptors, is projected to grow by 1% from 2020 to 2030, which is as fast as the average for all occupations. Additionally, the demand for photographers is expected to decline slightly by 4% during the same period. However, with your passion for self-expression and boundless creativity, you can create your own masterpieces and dazzle the world, opening up opportunities in galleries, exhibitions, and freelance work.

Animation and Multimedia

Are you a storyteller with a love for animation? This one's for you, animators, and multimedia maestros! The demand for multimedia artists and animators is projected to grow 4% from 2020 to 2030, as per BLS. Bring characters to life, create fantastical worlds, and dive into the realms of gaming and film. Who knows, your work might be the next big thing! The entertainment industry welcomes your artistic talents with open arms.

Art Education

Wanna be the guiding light for future artists? Art education is where it's at! According to BLS, the demand for postsecondary art, drama, and music teachers is projected to grow by 9% from 2020 to 2030, faster than the average for all occupations. As an art teacher, you'll inspire and nurture young talents, shaping a generation of creative minds. It's like being a mentor, cheerleader, and art guru all rolled into one, leaving a lasting impact on the artistic community.

Museum and Gallery Curating

Calling all art history buffs and curating connoisseurs! The demand for archivists, curators, and museum workers is projected to grow 11% from 2020 to 2030, according to BLS, much faster than the average for all occupations. You'll be a storyteller, showcasing the wonders of the past and present for all to see, preserving and sharing cultural treasures for generations to come.

Advertising and Marketing

Imagine your artwork gracing billboards, TV ads, and social media campaigns. As an art director or creative genius, you'll collaborate with word wizards to cook up campaigns that leave jaws dropping and hearts pounding. According to BLS, the employment of art directors in advertising, public relations, and related services is projected to grow 2% from 2020 to 2030. Embrace your inner Don Draper (minus the smoke-filled office) and seize the opportunity to make a mark in the dynamic world of advertising and marketing.

So, my fellow art enthusiasts, fear not the naysayers who question the viability of an art degree. Your passion, skills, and dedication are what the world needs. Embrace your artistic superpowers and explore a kaleidoscope of opportunities. From fine arts to advertising, animation to interior design, your art major opens doors to a world where your creativity reigns supreme. Get out there, shine bright, and make your mark on the canvas of life! The world is your gallery, so let's paint it in bold, brilliant hues of success! 🎨😊

To find the most recent data on job opportunities for art majors, please visit the Bureau of Labor Statistics website at www.bls.gov or consult other authoritative labor market sources in your region.

THE INK WELL INSIDER

—Maleea Straube—

Maleea is a twenty-one year old artist here at Penn, double majoring in Creative & Fine Arts and English, with a writing emphasis. She chose WPU because of its proximity to family and friends (and the price wink), but the kind faculty and fellow students is what compelled her to stay.

"My inspiration into the arts started when I was little," Maleea tells us, describing how she was influenced by her artistic family. "It allows freedom to express myself and my emotions."

With graduation on the rise, she says she's considering attending graduate school and hopes to become a tattoo artist. Her advice to fellow aspiring artists is to be open minded, to explore the art of others, and, most importantly, know that you can find success.

Recent Game Highlights

August 22nd, 2023

FOOTBALL

On November 5th, 2022, the William Penn University football team emerged victorious with a score of 14-3 against their rival, Clarke. The game saw standout performances from the team's quarterback, Sterling Ramsey, who had an impressive game leading the offense. Additionally, Destynd Loring showcased his skills in rushing, contributing significantly to the team's success. Their combined efforts and exceptional performances were instrumental in securing the well-deserved win for William Penn University.

A PEAK PERFORMANCE

ELEMENTARY ED.

Tabitha Rogers, a Southern California native, is a junior at William Penn University. Showing remarkable speed and endurance has earned her the Penn & Ink Newspaper title of "Peak Player." Tabitha is currently pursuing a degree in Elementary Education with a minor in English Writing. Last season, she finished strong with impressive times of 12.76 in the 100 meters and 26.66 in the 200 meters. Her dedication and hard work have undoubtedly paid off, and she is sure to continue making a name for herself in the upcoming season.

"Your ability to adapt to failure and navigate your way out of it absolutely, 100 percent, makes you who you are." - Viola Davis.

Read more about Tabitha in her Athlete Profile, which showcases her stats, achievements, and Q&As!

VOLLEYBALL

In an intense volleyball match on November 11th, 2022, the WPU team secured a thrilling 3-2 victory against Mt. Mercy. The game held great significance for the team as they sought revenge against their opponent. The trio of Jade Melton, Alyvia Johnson, and Corrin Lepper played exceptional roles, registering impressive numbers with 14, 13, and 13 kills respectively. Notably, this win was a pivotal moment in the Heart North Standings, as it propelled WPU ahead, making a difference in their standing within the league. It was a hard-fought and triumphant game that showcased the team's determination and skill.

Alpha Lambda Delta takes pride in its mission of recognizing outstanding students who have conquered their freshman year with remarkable academic prowess. But wait, there's more! The honor society's purpose goes beyond just patting each other on the back for acing exams. ALD seeks to build a close-knit community of scholars who stand strong together, supporting one another socially, professionally, and, most importantly, academically.

Prospective members might be thinking, "Seems like too much work for me." However, at ALD, they understand the hard work students put in, including pulling those all-nighters. The criteria for joining the ALD family at WPU are simple - an awe-inspiring 3.5 GPA during the first semester. Whether fresh-faced freshmen or seasoned transfer students, as long as the GPA requirement is met, they're in!

Now, let's talk recognition - the celebration of members' achievements! Each spring, the society comes together to honor exceptional members with an initiation ceremony. There's a big shout-out to the stellar students at WPU's annual awards ceremony, and graduation cords for the big day!

SHINING A SPOTLIGHT: Alpha Lambda Delta

Studying for finals can be a rollercoaster ride of stress and anxiety, but fear not! Picture this: a study party during finals where members can hit the books in a serene atmosphere while munching on delicious snacks. Now, that's the kind of study group we need!

But hey, ALD isn't just about hitting the books. In the fall, they gear up for charitable events like can drives, embodying the spirit of giving back to the community. And when spring arrives, it's time to kick back and have some fun. Show up this year for a murder mystery-best detective gets rewarded!

ALD seeks to empower its members to take charge and lead with confidence. Sharpen your leadership skills by becoming an officer to gain real experience!

Academic Excellence: ALD boosts academic brilliance, encouraging members to soar to new heights of scholastic achievement.

Community: This society is more than just a group; it's a supportive family that uplifts and celebrates each other's triumphs.

Leadership and Professional Development: ALD offers leadership seminars and opportunities for members to grow into fearless leaders, ready to take on the world.

Philanthropy: The society believes in making a difference by lending a helping hand to those in need, fostering a spirit of giving back to the community.

Networking: It's not just about what you know; it's also about who you know. ALD provides a platform for members to connect with peers, faculty, and professionals, creating a web of valuable connections for life.
